HIS EARLY LIFE.

ANOTHER STORY ABOUT WILLIAM WARNER'S YOUTH.

The Tale Bears Some Resemblance to Mr. Edwin Osborne's Story of Warner's Boyhood.

Our readers will remember that the DEMOCRAT some weeks ago published an interview with Mr. Edwin Osborne concerning the early life and subsequent conduct of Major Warner.

When the major visited Sedalia a few days ago the DEMOCRAT requested a statement from him concerning the interview, but he respectfully declined to be interviewed on the subject.

The following from the St. Louis Chronicle, however, savors of having come from headquarters, and we give it that our readers may see how near the story agrees with that told by Mr. Osborne, who, by the way, is positive that William Warner was born in England and greatly in doubt as to whether he has ever been naturalized. The Chronicle says:

"Major Warner believes he was born in Wisconsin, though he cannot swear to it of his own personal knowledge. His father died when he was five years of age, and his mother one year later. At 6, not knowing his letters, having not a soul on earth to whom he could look to for sympathy, left alone and in need of aid, little Willie Warner had to rub up against the world in a mining camp in the lead fields of Southern Wisconsin. Records of the family he never saw, and no relatives hunted him up to give him a boost.

Hunger and the need of a shirt made the little tot get to thinking, and he saw food and raiment in culling over the refuse ore piles and picking out the galena. His industry and success gave the Superintendent of the mine a pointer, and as usual the child's immediate necessities were taken advantage of and he was seduced from being a master of himself and a promising business and given a petty salary to drive the horse that worked the pump. Almost immediately the mine owners procured cheap labor to work over the refuse piles on shares. That was where William Warner got the first and indelible lesson that has made him the champion of the workman through good and evil report and when he has been both in and out of office.

After three years of belting the decrepit old putap horse Willie was promoted. The 10-year-old lad proudly turned his back upon "Shacklebones," and stood behind the sleek animal which was the locomotive power that hoisted the ore bucket from the gloomy bowels of mother earth. Willie took pride in the new animal who felt his oats.

He was a very intelligent animal and did his work at command or the mere rattling of the rope by the men when the bucket was full. This set Willie to thinking. He reasoned: "That horse knows just as much as I do. He goes when the bucket is full and the rope rattles. He knows when the bucket reaches the top, stops and backs up. I could do no more. That horse might just as well drive me as drive it. I'm just going to learn to read and write so I'll know more than him."

That night he fairly ran down to the store after supper and said, "I want one of them books that'll make me read." After some questions the clerk took in the situation and sold the kid miner his first book—a primer. He also gave the lad some good advice and gave him his first lesson in mastering the alphabet.

The taste of knowledge made him voracious. He studied till the last lamp was out in his boarding house and by the first ray of light that came peeping in through his garret window, his book was in his hand on the hoisting beat at the mine and his lessons were in his dreams by night and his services by day.

When 14 a grocer took in Willie's industry and resolved to make a profit out of it. He secretly outbid the mine boss and Willie quit trotting behind old "Reliable" on the ore hoisting track and began a career of sugar weighing and parcel making. This added to his income and his savings, and in a few years he quit putting up packages and knocked for admittance on the doors of the great Michigan university at Ann Arbor. When he told the professors that he had never been at school a day in his life they were astonished, but his examination convinced them that schools were not necessary in one lad's case.

A year used up his means and at 16 he had to quit for a time, replenishing his lean purse by teaching school, though he had never been inside one until he entered college. He mixed up a study of law with a searching of district school text books. Three years passed and at 19 young Warner again stood upon the stone steps of Michigan's educational pride. He had been here something over a year this, second time when the first shot of rebellion set the students wild with excitement. A party of them, including Wm. Warner, rushed to the nearest recruiting station. Nearly all of them were under 21, Warner being but 20, and the company was declared infants terrible and respectfully declined.

Disgusted young Warner returned to his home instead of college and again began teaching school and studying law. The day of his majority came with the echoes of booming cannon on a bloody Southern field. When the news of the battle reached the little red school house the master promptly dismissed a class in the midst of a recitation, told the pupils to go home, as there would be no more school until a new teacher was secured, and that same night was enrolled and donned a suit of blue at the neighboring town of Shullsburg, Wis., where with others he succeeded in enlisting a company.

A SURPRISE.

Miss Ollie Hall and Mr. Robert Penquite Married at Stockton, Mo.

A quiet little marriage has just become known that has in it all the elements of romance and concerns two well-known young people.

During the past six or eight years, Robert Penquite, son of the postmaster at Lamonte, has paid his attentions to Miss Ollie Hall, the pretty and accomplished daughter of A. J. Hall, candidate for public administrator on the republican ticket, now of Sedalia, but recently of Lamonte. Mr. Hall for some reason objected to his daughter's receiving any attentions from Mr. Penquite that might have marriage for their ultimate purposes.

The young couple, however, doubtless thought that love could learn to wait. Mr. Penquite departed for Santa Fe, New Mexico, where in partnership with Wm. Hall, Miss Hall's cousin, he entered into the steam laundry business. Miss Hall was also content to wait and devote herself to the study of music in which she is very proficient.

A short time ago she left Sedalia for El Dorado Springs where she went to visit friends. Mr. Penquite also concluded that he needed a change and, like a gallant young man, of course, came to Missouri to spend his vacation. He arrived at El Dorado in due time and last Monday the friends of the young couple were surprised to hear that they had gone to Stockton, Mo., where they were quietly married.

Preparations were made to leave at once for Santa Fe, but it was finally decided that they first visit Miss Hall's parents at Sedalia and reconcile matters. Accordingly they arrived in this city Wednesday evening, and went at once to the bride's home. It is supposed that everything was amicably settled as Mr. and Mrs. Penquite left on the early train yesterday morning for their distant home in the far southwest.

A SORRY STEAL.

Grant Guard, of Smithton, Gets Deceived the Worst of It.

Grant Guard was arrested to-day and taken before Justice Fisher for a big job of stealing recently done by him. Guard lives one mile north of Smithton, but worked in the vicinity of Dresden when he did the stealing.

He was in that part of the country one day this week with his team and wagon. He stole a set of harness from Harrison Ewers and 10 bushels of wheat from Sam Adams. He came on to Sedalia and stole 17 harness rings from A. M. Mackey.

He was taken before Justice Fisher this morning and fined $20 and costs, $30.25, on the first offense; $10 and costs, $19.50, on the second, and $1 and costs, $10.50, on the third, making a total of $60.25, which he paid.

Attention! Knights of Pythias.

All K. of P.'s are earnestly requested to meet at the Castle hall of Sedalia lodge, No. 27, at 114 East Fifth street, at 1 o'clock, p. m. to-morrow, to attend the funeral of our late brother, Frank Mead.

SEDALIA IN THE LEAD.

Her Chances for Securing the Opening of the State Democratic Campaign.

At an informal meeting of a small band of democrats, held in W. D. Steele's law office yesterday afternoon, V. P. Hart, Chairman Longan of the county central committee, and County Clerk Mitchum, were appointed to go to see W. J. Stone and urge before him Sedalia's claims as the place for holding the opening state democratic campaign.

Accordingly these gentlemen went to Nevada last night and acted as per instruction. The gentlemen returned home this morning and avowed that they were very much encouraged, as Col. Stone was not slow to favor Sedalia. Col. Stone and Hon. Harvey Salmon, chairman of the state executive committee, will arrive here to-morrow evening on their way to St. Louis, when the local committee will have a further conference with them.

The time and place for holding the opening will be decided Monday. Sedalia, St. Louis and Hannibal are in the contest, with the first in the lead.

Lawyers Fight.

W. D. Steele and I. C. Wilson, both Sedalia lawyers, became involved in a difficulty in front of Siche's hotel shortly before 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon and several blows were exchanged. Billy Harrah, who accompanied Lawyer Steele, also got into it, and left his mark on Lawyer Wilson's face. Bystanders finally separated the combatants before further damage was done.

age was done. Mr. Wilson had his face considerably bruised and bled profusely. The trouble is said to have arisen over politics.

Steele was arrested and taken before Justice Levens for assault and battery. He gave bond in the sum of $100 for his appearance next Wednesday at 10 o'clock.

PROMINENT DEATHS.

Two of Fayette's Noted Citizens Succumb to the Grim Destroyer.

Fayette suffered the loss of two of her worthiest citizens yesterday—Miss Emma Jackson and Rev. William Warren. Miss Jackson has for fifteen years been identified with the educational interests of Fayette and was recognized as one of the most able teachers in the state.

Rev. Morris' death was caused by heart failure. He expired yesterday morning at Carrollton. He was an Englishman by birth and was perhaps the oldest Southern Methodist preacher in Missouri.

One of his sons, Prof. A. P. Warren, is a member of the faculty of Howard-Payne college, while another son, Rev. George Warren, of Mexico, is one of the most able preachers in his conference.

Mexico's Kite Track.

John R. Gentry was at Mexico, Mo., yesterday, where he went to arrange about entering four of his horses in the races. The kite track meeting commenced Monday and continues during the week. Mr. Gentry said there were 310 horses already entered and the fees paid for same. In the 2:30 trot for $2,000 there are fifty-nine entries. John has a horse entered in this race.

The track is declared to be a good one in many particulars, but will lose the fast time of the Sedalia track. The sod is plowed in a different way and a heavy roller is passed over the soil, making the track heavy and slow. The top dressing is the same kind of dirt as that on our old half mile track

THE WINNER.

The Sedalia Gun Club Meets and Will Courtney Gets the Medal.

The Sedalia Gun club held its regular shoot at Association park yesterday afternoon and much interest was aroused as to who would win the gold medal. Will Courtney, however, settled the question by some unusually good shooting. Out of a possible 20 the score stands as follows:

Wm. Courtney, 11111111011110111111—18.
J. C. VanKiper, 01111111011111111111—17.
Dr. E. F. Vancey, 1111100111111111010101—16.
Frank B. Meyer, 11101110110101011111—15.
Dr. Shadburn, 0011111100111111111111—14.
L. L. Hgenfritz, 11100011101111111111—14.

On next Friday the contest will be for an elegant silver medal. The club promises to rapidly increase in numbers.

Main Street Fight.

Chas. Gerye and Jordan Hickman, the latter a colored man, became engaged in a row on East Main street yesterday afternoon about 3 o'clock, and for a time things looked rather squally. Gerye threw a brick at Hickman but missed him and struck a wagon. They then concluded to call it a draw.

Police Court.

J. F. Fox, Chas. Kohl, Ed. Hoffmaster, Dave Hearn, D. B. Bratt, B. Miller and Joe Brauer were arraigned for trespassing on railway trains. They were fined $5 each and given a stay to get out of town.

Joe Nelson and S. J. Jordan were arrested for late hours under suspicious circumstances, but they put up good talk and were dismissed.

Frank McCoy and Eve Johnson were up on the same charge and a fine of $5 each with a stay was given them.

Contempt of Court.

Sheriff Smith this morning arrested Rush Elmore, of the firm of Wheeler and Elmore, the Kansas City kite track contractors, for contempt of court. He did not obey the injunction issued by Judge Field, of Lexington, restraining the contractors from working at the track.

A Useful Souvenir.

A cordial invitation is extended to the general public.

FUNERAL OF CONDUCTOR MEAD.

Last Sad Rites to be Performed Sunday Afternoon Under the Auspices of the B. of R. C.

The funeral of Conductor Frank L. Mead, whose untimely death at Nevada was chronicled in yesterday's DEMOCRAT, will take place from the family residence, No. 523 West Seventh street, to-morrow afternoon under the auspices of the Order of Railway Conductors, aided by the Knights of Pythias. In addition to these several other fraternities, including the Brotherhoods of Locomotive Engineers, Firemen, Railway Trainmen and the Machinists' Organization, have been invited to take part in the exercises.

The different orders will assemble at the corner of Fifth and Ohio at 1:30 o'clock when they will march to the family residence where Rev. B. F. Boller will deliver a funeral oration.

In view of the high esteem in which the dead man was held and his extensive acquaintance the obsequies are expected to call forth an immense gathering. None of the relatives from New York will be present, his mother being very aged and in an enfeebled condition.

Cut Your Weeds and Fix the Alleys.

Numerous complaints are being made about the filthy condition of alleys and the immense growth of rank weeds along some of the sidewalks. Sedalia has no reason for allowing her alleys to be in such a condition and the people should move around and clean up.

Death of Rev. Phillips.

The many friends of Rev. Preston Phillips, of Lamonte, will regret to learn of his death, which occurred at noon yesterday at the home of his sister, Mrs. William Groesbeck, in Independence.

The deceased was one of the best known and most respected ministers in the Southwest Missouri conference of the Southern Methodist church. He was 63 years of age and leaves a wife and family of sons and daughters, one of the latter being a missionary in China.

Rev. Phillips was assigned to the pastorate of the church at Lamonte at the conference last September, but his health soon became too bad for him to continue the work, and for months he had been ill that little hope was entertained for his recovery. He was a good man and he will be missed in church circles.

Fair Improvements.

At an informal meeting of the executive committee of the State Fair association this morning, it was decided to make additional improvements for the accommodation of stock at the grounds. Accordingly the four barns will be enlarged and one hundred extra stalls made.

This makes 400 in all.

Another item of which no mention has been made is the fact that Gov. Norman J. Coleman, of St. Louis, will sit as one of the judges at the races.

They Were Sick.

Even though Siche's had an experienced man, Detective Applegate, of St. Louis, yet they suffered some loss from thieves during the convention. A Smith & Wesson pistol, left at the office by a guest, was stolen, and a gentleman in one of the rooms was loser to the amount of $15 in cash.

A Bad Man.

W. T. Johnson, a country fellow, got full to-day and went down to the house of ill repute run by Retta LeRoy on Main street. Things didn't go to suit Johnson and he started in to knock out the inmates. Officers Scally and Dixon, after a lively tussle, locked him up.

Will You Go?

County Clerk Mitchum is in receipt of a communication from the secretary of the board of curators of the state university, advising him that under the revised statutes of Missouri, Pettis county is entitled to a representation of sixteen students at the university.

Is Making a success.

Ernest Faulhaber has arrived home from Chicago and will visit his parents and sisters during his vacation. Ernest is rapidly going to the front as a railroad man.

Going to Kentucky.

Dr. O. B. Caldwell leaves to-morrow for the home of his parents at Danville, Ky., and will be absent two weeks. Wonder who she will be?

To Attend the Funeral.

Mrs. Auberry, of Omaha, sister-in-law of Mrs. Frank Mead, arrived at noon to attend the funeral of the dead conductor.

Remember that Kerman Schmitt is the best place in the city to get a first class drink of something that will do you good.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—Patrons of the EVENING DEMOCRAT will confer a favor upon the management by promptly reporting any irregularity in delivery or bad condition of paper from improper handling.

STAND UP for Missouri and also for the party that stands up for Missouri.

Ir Major Warner really decides to stand up for Missouri he should cast his vote for the whole Democratic ticket.

FROM noon Thursday to noon Friday one hundred and six children in New York City fell victims to the intense heat.

FOR congressman in the Ninth district: Dick Dalton or some other good Democrat upon whom the party can unite.

PETTIS county democrats are giving their county and state ticket a most hearty support. There is no dissatisfaction anywhere along the line.

BEN HARRISON seems to be least popular where he is best known. At least the condition of his candidacy in Indiana would indicate that such is the case.

SOME people profess to be unable to understand the difference between a revenue tariff and a protective tariff. A revenue tariff is a duty collected on imported goods; a protective tariff is a duty fixed so high as to prevent importations and enable American manufacturers to raise the price of what they sell.

OUR neighboring city of Clinton, with its splendid hotels, beautiful park, unrivaled mineral well and refined hospitable and enterprising people, asks for the honor of entertaining the Missouri Press Association next year. Certainly no place can be found where the "moulders of public opinion" can spend a few days more pleasantly or more profitably.

THE DEMOCRAT is glad to see the hurrah campaign inaugurated by the republicans. It will stir up careless democrats and help to bring out the full party vote. The only danger the Missouri democracy has to face is the over-confidence of its own members, and when democrats hear repeated and emphatic claims that the republicans are going to carry the state they will be pretty apt to be close around where the voting is going on on election day.

THAT POLITICAL GHOST.

The Chicago Tribune, in its anxiety to help the republican cause, characterizes the force bill as "a mere ghost." Had the organ stopped there it would have stood upon good fighting ground at least, says the Detroit Free Press, for its assertion is open to different constructions, and is at best of an intangible and uncertain character. But, continuing with a vague idea of showing the ghostly character of the proposed measure, the Tribune says that "The breath of life cannot be blown into it unless the republicans can carry a majority, hold the Senate and re-elect Harrison."

In this statement there is an implied admission and an unmistakable inference, both of which urge the democrats and other fair minded citizens of the country to do all possible for the defeat of the party going before the country with an endorsement of the force bill as the most conspicuous plank in its platform. The force bill is at present "a mere ghost." Let the republicans get a majority in the house, secure the senate and give Harrison another term, then their ghost will become a thing of life, a present reality, a menace to the peace of the country, a mainstay of the party which has no higher purpose or more cherished desire than to retain supremacy in the affairs of this government. With this fact clearly understood, as ingeniously admitted by the Tribune, the people will see that the force bill remains a ghost by turning down those who, if given the power, will give it "the breath of life."

The Chicago organ proceeds with an evident desire to eliminate the force bill from the canvass, not upon the grounds that it would be an iniquitous measure of usurpation, but because there is no possibility of the republicans securing a majority in the house, and hence no chance of enacting or enforcing the obnoxious legislation in question. That is a pettifogger's method of escaping defense of an avowed principle. In view of the fact that a national democratic victory seems assured, the Tribune and the party for which it speaks, would only be consistent in declaring the whole republican platform a ghost and throwing every plank of it out of the canvass.

The g. o. p. stands committed to the force bill and acknowledges the indisputable wickedness of the proposed measure by trying to pooh-pooh it into insignificance as an issue. Harrison was an ardent advocate of the force bill before the elections of 1890, and was even more zealous in urging its passage after the people had given their overwhelming condemnation of the republican administration than he was before. Czar Reed said that the force bill was a measure to enable the republican party in congress to do its own registration, its own supervision, and its own counting in the matter of federal elections. The bill passed the house but was defeated in the republican senate by a few members who were at a variance with the president on the currency question. The force bill, the McKinley law and the wanton extravagance of the billion dollar congress were all freely discussed in the canvass of 1890 and received a condemnation that foreshadowed an early downfall of the republican party. With a hope of regaining power for another term, and a desperate purpose of retaining it through the operation of the force bill, that measure was given the place of honor in the Chicago platform. The republicans want to join with Mr. Reed in doing "our own registration; our own supervision, our own counting and our own returning." It is this "ghost" that democracy is called upon to lay.

THE Democrats in the Seventh congressional district have a work to do this fall. The district is a new one and the exact majority is unknown. Something of a new factor is introduced too by the candidacy of the third party nominee, and every democrat should feel it his duty to strive to make the party majority so large that there will be no inducement for the opposition to combine in the future. Of course the election of Hon. John T. Heard is assured. So clean and honorable has been his record that he could defeat either or both of his opponents in a district where the vote was really against his party, but the future as well as the present must be looked after in politics. The old Sixth district gave the largest plurality of any in the state in 1890; let the new Seventh win the banner this fall.

THE Kansas City Star professes to be an earnest supporter of Cleveland, and yet it is industriously supporting Warner for governor. Such inconsistency is disgusting. The newspaper which in this day and age hopes to "run with the hare and hold with the hounds" places a false estimate upon the intelligence of the people. Warner stands for nothing that Harrison does not favor, and Stone only differs from Cleveland in favoring free coinage of silver. The people of Missouri are for free coinage, so there are stronger reasons for supporting Stone than there are for supporting Cleveland. The Star may rest assured that the state democratic ticket will receive just as many votes as the national ticket, and if Warner carries Missouri the electoral vote will be recorded for Harrison.

JACKSON county made a fight in the state convention for her man which was watched and admired by every candidate before the convention and even cheered by the delegates, says the Independence Sentinel. An American loves to see a fair fight and honors the manly opponent. When Stone was declared the nominee of the convention, none cheered more lustily than the Jackson county men, for after the nomination, Stone was their man. Stone is our candidate now and will receive from Jackson county no lukewarm support.

THAT committee appointed to investigate the charge made by Watson, of Georgia, that drunken members had been seen reeling through the aisles of the house and attempting to participate in legislation should hold its meetings with open doors and all the testimony should be published. Such charges are too frequently made and the public should have the full benefit of the investigation that the truth may be made manifest once for all.

THE DEMOCRAT is almost daily in receipt of complaints and kicks about the bad condition of sidewalks in certain portions of the city. The most forcible kick, however, can be administered in the way of a complaint to the proper city official. Make the complaint in writing and let the property owner know you are going to make it, and then let the neighbors know you have made it.

UNLESS Col. Streater is punished for his brutal treatment of James Iames there will be strong opposition to any further appropriation of state funds to support militia organizations in Pennsylvania. A man who is brutal and vindictive enough to act as Streater did is liable to execute any private citizen who fails to salute him or who happens to offend him in any other way.

MAJOR KIRBY, of the West Plains Gazette, is a gentleman who knows his own mind and who don't attempt to hide what's in it. He boldly announces that he will be a candidate for secretary of state in 1896. The major is a man of ability and character and is in every way able to stand a four years' campaign.

THE state of Missouri has lost one of her ablest, best and most respected citizens by the death of Ex-Gov. Chas. H. Hardin, of Mexico. The good he has done the state will live as long as our civilization remains, for he labored zealously and earnestly in the cause of christianity and education.

THE story of Major Warner's life as told in the Chronicle is not quite so explicit as that told by Mr. Osborne. The major's biographer should have called upon the old friend who knew Warner so well and he could have recalled some interesting points which William appears to have entirely forgotten.

No other man in the city has the reputation for fine wines, whiskies, etc., that Peter Pehl has. Give him a call.

BUBBLES PRICKED.

Anti-Humbag Punctures Protection Fallacies.

To the Editor of the Sedalia Democrat:
If I were a protectionist, and contended for "shutting out foreign goods," I would go the "whole hog" and demand the enactment of a strictly prohibitive tariff, and not, as the protectionists do in the next breath, express satisfaction with letting the foreigner come in here, if only he pays for the privilege of so doing. The protectionists claim that every dollar's worth of goods imported here displaces just a dollar's worth of our own labor. Now, if this is so, they shouldn't allow any foreign goods to be brought in. For, if their claim is true, what matters it if a tariff duty is paid on the foreign articles, if such articles could possibly be produced here, no matter at what expenditure of time, labor and money, isn't it a dead loss to allow them to come in here, and won't they displace labor just the same and to the same extent whether a duty has been paid on them or not?

Oh, the protectionists' ideas don't dove-tail; no, not a bit of it. Here is another sample: The protectionists say that prices of goods made in foreign countries are lower than here; therefore wages are lower in foreign countries, they assert. At the same time do they maintain that the consumer here has his interests well cared for and looked after, inasmuch as protection has lowered prices of goods until they are as low as in foreign countries; while at the same time protection has maintained, even raised, wages. So they say.

Can any sane person make these contradictory claims and contentions harmonize? I trow not. If prices here are as low as in England and we still pay higher wages than there, then it must follow as a logical sequence that high wages does not necessarily mean high prices of goods, or that low wages does not logically follow as an inevitable result from low prices. Let the protectionists take either—or both—horn or horns of the dilemma, I don't care which, and they are beat; as they surely will be next November election.

Unless a person or people belong to the thieves or beggar class; if people are wealth producers; well, then, if protection causes so much higher prices for goods as it causes higher wages it would be of no benefit; for what the laborers gained as producers they would lose as consumers, or as buyers of commodities, and in that case the tariff would be no good. And if we can produce and sell goods as cheaply as foreigners, and still pay higher wages, it demonstrates the fact that a tariff is not necessary to compensate for any difference in wages, and, therefore, a luxury. And if it is contended that we must pay higher wages, though we have to pay higher prices, what good is the tariff? And if the protectionists say that though we have to pay a little higher prices for goods than foreigners do, still, not so much more as our rate of wages are higher, I answer: "Now you gave your case away." Now, then, you protectionists admit that our labor is more productive than labor in foreign countries; then it must follow that our labor should be paid higher wages, should it not? And would not this difference in productiveness remain even though we had no tariff?

If protection is right, then the union of these United States into one country of free trade with and over and between all these states is a stupendous blunder and awful mistake. And I think the protectionists secretly yearn for a high protective tariff as against one another of all these states and territories. If they do not, let them tell us the reason why they do not. And if they do tell us the reason why they do not they must use free trade arguments.

ANTI-HUMBAG.

He'll be Welcomed.

From the Green Ridge Enterprise.
The Green Ridge fife and drum corps was spoken of by the Sedalia Democrat as one of the best features of the occasion. When the great democratic rally takes place the DEMOCRAT will please keep its reportorial eye on Corporal Joe Darr and his gallant drum corps of Cleveland boys. It is whispered around that Corporal Joe will be promoted to drum major and that the citizens intend subscribing for a magnificent gold mounted baton and cork lined helmet that he may appear in style.

He Got the Seat.

From the Green Ridge Enterprise.
The enthusiasm worked up by the cry of "Warner and a New Missouri" inflated one man from Windsor so much that, notwithstanding the cars were overcrowded on the return trip, he felt so big that he must occupy two seats. Squire Jim Vaughan being the holder of a return ticket considered that he was at least entitled to one of them and politely suggested that gentlemanly Windsorite take his foot down so that the Squire might turn the seat over and thus make himself easy for the journey. The gentlemanly Windsorite objected in language less refined than our Squire is accustomed to and on our Squire attempting to turn the seat, Windsor aimed a blow at his head but fell short. The discussion all at once became so animated that the Squire's right arm became excited and took quite a lively part. After receiving a black eye and seeing a few stars and having his white shirt front dyed a sanguinary red, said gentlemanly Windsorite was nearly convinced that Squire Vaughan was entitled to a seat. And the Squire turned it over and sat down.

Cheap Homes for Millions.

In order to meet the constantly growing demands which come from every quarter of the north, east and west, for reduced rates, to enable the farmer, the emigrant and the capitalist to visit the southwest, and particularly Texas, the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railway have determined to sell tickets on August 30th, September 27th and October 25th, from points in the north, east and west to all points in the state of Texas, at the extremely low rate of One Fare for the Round Trip, good to return 20 days from date of sale.

The reports which come from Texas of the prodigious prospective yields in the crops for the present season, as well as those for several previous years, together with the severity of the winters in the northern and western states for several years past, will induce many to locate on the sun-kissed prairies of this favored land during the coming fall. Now is your opportunity, grasp it while it is yet within your reach.

To Summer Tourists.

The season is at hand when the man of affairs, the man who, through the long winter months, has devoted his best energies to the tasks and problems of the counting room, the office, the pulpit, or legislative halls; when the matron and the maid, wearied of the long season of social gaiety or confinement in the school or lecture room, betake themselves to the sea shore, the mountains, the country or the springs, in search of pleasure and rest. The Missouri, Kansas and Texas railway has placed on sale summer tourist tickets at very low rates, with long transit limits, good to return until October 1st or 15th. Every variety of amusements and the most picturesque of surroundings are thus placed within the reach of all.

PROHIBITION.

As Discussed by Prof. Bond, of Fayette.—The Tariff not an Issue.

Following the nomination of their congressman, Elder J. B. Mayfield, yesterday afternoon, the prohibitionists of the Seventh district held a sort of love feast in the circuit court room last evening.

It was announced that Chairman Warde King, of the state central committee, would speak, but such was not the case. Prof. R. T. Bond who occupies the chair of mathematics at Central College, Fayette, proved an able substitute, however. He was introduced by Chairman E. E. McClelland. His speech consumed about three quarters of an hour, and consisted of a cursory review of prohibition principles.

He took three general topics, based on different planks in the party platform:

First. Prohibition, the dominant issue in politics.

Second. Suffrage and wages not to be determined by sex.

Third. Tariff, as opposed to that set forth by the republican and democratic platforms.

After reading the planks on which these topics were based, he introduced his discussion of the first by defining a prohibitionist as one who may be an habitual drinker, though he must support the party ticket. Prohibition, he said, was the dominant issue in politics because it was of much greater financial import—a fact upheld by official statistics—to the people than any other question, and chiefly because it was founded on morals, something ignored by the others. It promised an economic system that would greatly relieve those burdened with taxation and agreed to revolutionize the whole moral nature of the nation. It was maintained that tariff for revenue only and tariff for protection were practically the same so far as it concerned the individual. He opposed the different systems employed for paying salaries to state and national officers and confessed his inability to see why a president should be paid from a source different from that of a governor.

In his opinion, no such thing exists as an issue on the tariff between the parties. It is merely a local question. So in regard to the coinage of silver.

The second topic furnished a proposition which the speaker postulated, declaring it to be self-evident.

The third and last topic was largely anticipated in his discussion of the first, though in this one he made bold to confess that he was a free trader and that while his party had perhaps stolen the idea from Blaine's reciprocity scheme, yet the Plumed Knight had himself purloined it from the democrats.

In concluding, several specific objections urged against the prohibition party were burlesqued by the speaker.

An Elegant Catalogue.

The annual catalogue of the Marquette Military academy, at Sweet Springs, is just at hand from the press of Woodward & Tiernan, St. Louis. It is the handsomest and most elaborate school prospectus ever issued in the state. It is printed on the finest quality of paper, is attractive in gold designs, and the illustrations of the buildings, grounds, students, etc., are the perfection of the engraver's art.

Col. T. E. Spencer is the principal of the institute, and his attainments well qualify him for such an honorable and responsible position.

The Lost Diamond.

Mr. E. E. Memphis, of the recorder's office, St. Louis, has furnished the Sedalia officers with a description of the $150 diamond stud lost by him at the rally. The stone was set in platinum, had a gold screw and weighed one and one-half carats. It was pure white.

Something Good.

It is almost fair time and it behooves us if we would fare well to find a good place to buy the finest meats at the lowest prices. Messrs. West, Windsor and Ewart have bought out L. Bahner and will be found at his old stand. They are prepared to furnish good meats promptly and at close prices. Give them a call or telephone 135 and try them once. They have a fine assortment of meats, their cutters are courteous and you will be treated in the best way possible.

OBSERVATIONS.

BY PETRUCHIO.

Evening Prayer.

Father, accept the praise a loving heart
Lays at Thy feet. Take Thou the deeds
That I have done, and bless those that deserve
Acceptance at Thy hands; and, oh, forgive
All errors found therein.
Lead Thou my life, and teach me how Thy will to better do.
Help me to see in all that life shall bring Something of Thee, that I may gladly take Whatever shall come. Help me to serve Thee.
For to serve Thee is my great desire.
Keep humble in my heart the spirit Thou hast given,
But strong to battle for the good. Amen.

The Three Cripples.

Walking down Osage street a few days since I met three men not far apart. Strange coincidence, they were all lame. One alone used a cane, and of the other two only one was known as a poor unfortunate.

The first man walked bent over, every lineament of his visage drawn with the ravages of wasting disease. His right hand rested pitifully upon his hip, and his gate was slow and feeble, aided by a heavy stick in his left hand. Every jar of his cautious steps seemed to add to his suffering, and I could but feel a sweep of sympathy with him. But I put it away. I knew that it would have been querulously accepted and then thrown aside and forgotten.

He was not an old man, and yet the cares that burn and waste the heart and soul were eliminated by physical suffering. His responsibilities were relieved, and by the kindness of his cross he was disabled from heavy burdens for any but himself. Happy man! His world was his poor weak back, his duty was but to care for that, and the mercy of Heaven required no other thing from him.

My next acquaintance carried no stick, nor yet did he limp in his walk. His face was haggard and drawn, however, and in his eyes were a listless light that smoldered but yet ready to spring into instant fire. Dissipation and dissolution were pictured in his face, and I could readily see that his moral back had long since been so paralyzed that he was an incurable cripple. Ah, what a sorrow I felt for him, and then I paused. He did not need my sympathy so much, either, and would have indignantly rejected it. Interested only in the excitement of gambling, or the indulgence of passion and vice that had burned out his better nature, he was but a brute who felt not the pulsations of a noble sentiment coursing in his veins. He has not aspirations to be cured of his dread disease, and he would not renew his moral nature if he could. There is too much real sorrow in the world to waste tears over moral paralytics who know not that there is moral life, and who will not see it.

And then I saw my last cripple. Standing erect in the pure air of the morning, with a step firm and even elastic, he was pushing his way to the scene of his day's toil. There was a smile in his eye for every passer, there was no intimation of weakness in act or word. He met my gaze with a fearless and pleasant glance, smiled kindly as one who would say: "I hope you share my happiness; it's a bright world," and passed along. He was every inch a man—the noblest work of God.

I know him. I know his life. It is not all sunshine, and he has had his fall. It has crippled him. Not as this first poor victim, nor that second example of unconscious depravity, but the other, the wounding of the soul. I paused and looked after him. Young, strong, with a moral being as vigorous as the physical man, he looked the pride of angels, and yet my sympathy swelled within me, and I unchained it and let it go to him.

I knew he would not reject it. I knew that he would not seize it as his right and if useless cast it from him. But I knew that his soul would melt and he would welcome it and cherish it as the heart offering of one who gave not to material benefit, but rather to prove the reality of love that would lift it if it could.

He is the brave cripple. Though injured by his disease so that his soul must writhe with pain, yet bravely he conceals the spartan fox, and would burden none other with his hurt. He seeks the one cure, and the treatment applied his hours are given to cheerfulness and sunshine—to the entertainment and encouragement of all sorts of other cripples. And yet of these three I met that morning none so much needed nor so much value sympathy and kindness as this cripple who hides his sorrow from the world.

WHY MEN DRINK.

Some Points on the Habit—A Disease that Can be Cured Only by a Physician.

There are few, if any, habitual drinkers who would not like to become temperance men if they could. The fact is that more drunkards honestly wish to reform than people believe. When a man wishes to shake off the liquor habit and cannot, then it is time for the physician to step in and treat him as one afflicted with disease.

Many well meaning people cry out that any man can stop drinking if he wishes, or if he has the will. The latter is true, but not the former. He may wish to reform, but he does not have the will because that will has been taken away or weakened by long intemperance.

Here the Miner Institute takes him in charge. By a careful course of treatment this will to resist drink is strengthened. The drunkard drinks whiskey because he thinks whiskey. Is he hot, cold, sick? The least change in body or mind is sufficient to make him think of whiskey as his only relief. He thinks whiskey and then drinks it.

The Miner treatment gradually leads the patient to think of something else. Whiskey as the panacea for all ills is taken out of his thoughts. He is enabled to think freely. At the same time his will is strengthened so that he can resist temptation. At the same time it builds up his system and enables it to gain its normal condition. He then is placed back in the same condition he was in when he took his first glass of whiskey, wine or beer. He has no desire for drink; does not think of drink; has a will to resist if tempted to drink.

The Miner Institute has been tested and proven such a success that branch institute have been established over the west. Under the management of C. B. Hackney, with a physician from the parent home in Nebraska, the Sedalia Institute is already doing good work. It has several patients, all of whom testify to the remarkable effect that the treatment has had upon them already and all feel that in a short time they will be cured permanently. All persons interested in temperance or in the welfare of some friend who has drunk until drinking has become a disease should visit the institute and inquire into its methods.

THE IRON HALL TROUBLE.

What the Accountant of the Local Order Thinks About It.

Elsewhere in these columns will be found an account of a suit filed against the Order of the Iron Hall for alleged non-payment of benefits.

Asked if he thought any serious trouble would result, Mr. W. W. Taylor, accountant of the Local Branch No. 1244 of this city, hooted at the idea, and said that so far as the general order being affected by the trouble was concerned, he thought the report absurd. "The Sedalia order," said Mr. Taylor, has already drawn $300 in benefits and in no instance have they been withheld when candidates qualified as beneficiaries." He said that kickers would be found in all orders and the one in question was no exception. "If those who have filed suits are entitled to benefits they will get them I assure you," said he.

Let It Be Finished.

The Christian Educator, for July, 1892, contains an elegant illustration of the George R. Smith colored college, the foundation of which stands completed in the northern part of the city. The journal states it is the intention of its promoters to push the work rapidly forward at an early date. The structure is a handsome three story brick with two immense wings reaching out from a very imposing front.

A Daily Exhibition.
From the Springfield (Ill.) Register.

There is no use of anyone worrying about the World's fair. It will be a big success if there is no other article on exhibition than Chicago check and Chicago grit. The $5,000,000 congress has refused to appropriate could not increase nor diminish these stupendous and overshadowing exhibits.

A SHORT HISTORY

Of the Miner Symptomatic Gold Treatment and Some of the Secrets of its Unrivalled Success.

The Miner treatment is not an experiment, but the outgrowth of a complete and careful research, combined with years of experience. Centuries ago Paracelsus discovered a golden light and proclaimed to the world that the great eradicating agent for all hereditary taints would be found in gold, the king of metals. Ever since it has been demonstrated to the world that alcoholism is a curable disease, there has existed much of skepticism and prejudice, coming not only from the general public, but from the medical fraternity as well. It has taken time to overcome these obstacles. There was also need for improvement in the remedies used, and a more scientific system for their administration. In formulating our treatment, Symptomatic Gold Treatment these and many other most needed requisites for a safe and scientific course of treatment have been successfully met.

After visiting numerous institutions established for the treatment and cure of diseases in question, and upon close investigation we are frank to admit that there is a marked similarity in all treatments. It is not our intention to speak disparagingly of any who may, either by word or deed, help on this grand work. Yet, as we have already indicated, to our minds, the only safe and reliable treatment is that which is known and admits of variation by the physician in charge. Then and only then is he prepared to meet complications and suit his treatment to the changing conditions of the patient, as in pneumonia, typhoid fever, or any other disease.

Therefore, in presenting to you our Symptomatic Gold Treatment, we beg you to consider it thoughtfully, and should it recommend itself to your best judgment we shall be pleased to have you investigate our work, either in your own interest or in behalf of your friends and suffering humanity.

Another Hotel.

The Le Grand Hotel on Lamine street has been re-opened by R. L. Blair. Everything will be first class and of the edge. It is the only hotel in the city that has a Delmonico restaurant in connection with it. Everything will be served as ordered. Nothing will be left undone to keep the LeGrand in the lead, and we bespeak a good patronage and a success for Mr. Blair. The office will be under the supervision of Senator Richardson.

Dr. M. L. Smith, Specialist, Oculist and Scientific Optician. Practice limited exclusively to the eye. Office corner Fourth and Ohio streets, Sedalia, Mo.

Sicher's cafe is at present one of the coolest places in the city. Revolving fans almost bring back winter as you are served with lemonades and their famous ice creams.
